

Kady O'Grady

Chief Talent Officer

Kady oversees Innosight's people development efforts, including performance management, recruiting, and staffing. Prior to joining Innosight, Kady led human resources development at PatientKeeper (a healthcare IT firm) by helping to create and build the recruiting, performance management, training, and employee relations structures from the ground up.

Previously, Kady was at Ernst and Young, overseeing staffing, employee relations, performance management, training, and compensation. She also spent the early part of her career at McKinsey & Company, where she worked with the Marketing Practice and Professional Development, focusing on performance management and staffing. Kady attended Boston University and earned her BA in Psychology at Harvard University.